'I'm not afraid of impeachment'

By Jerome Abo and Norman Bernardino

COMMISSION ON ELECTIONS CHAIR BENJAMIN ABALDE Sr. yesterday said he was ready to face a supposed impeachment case which some lawmakers were considering filing against him over a controversial $329-million telecommunications deal with China.

Abalde also told the houses that should the deal involving the wiring up of a national broadband network (NBN) awarded to Philippine in favor of China, he did not intend to resign.

"I'm not afraid because I did not do anything wrong," he said when asked about the reported impeachment threat.

Abalde denied having any influence in the negotiations between China and the Philippines to build the project. In another development, former Senate Vice Speaker Aquino has asked the Supreme Court to immediately issue a temporary restraining order to the implementation of the government's NBN contract with the Chinese FTE Corp. China's bid to build the NBN project is under review by the Commission on Government Procurement.

The project aims to link government agencies throughout the country through a common electronic backbone.

China's bid of $329 million is more than double the $150 million offer by the other two bidders, American Holdings Inc. (AHI) and the US-based American Broadband. Aquino also said he did not intend to resign. He said he was not playing golf with PTE officials.

GSIS head says sorry for e-Card glitches with business affairs and communications (see Storylines).

Garcia, whose leadership has been under attack and received complaints of delayed payments of pensions and benefits of GSIS members, said the computerization of the GSIS's systems through the introduction of the electronic identification card is GSIS's top priority, which is supported by the national government.

He cited such automation practices as checks being issued to GSIS members who are already dead. He said some people were engaged in falsifying or forging GSIS issued checks at a 5 to 10 percent discount.

He said the GSIS has been losing some electronic money people were losing their sources of livelihoods, he said. And the reason why some would not be supportive of it, he would not blame, the automation project, Garcia said.

While initially admitting that the complaints were only due to some glitches in the system and that they were coming from a small portion of the GSIS's 1.4 million membership, Garcia eventually agreed that the problem was serious that he would fix it in person.

The problem has been recognized by employees from GSIS pensioners and active members from all over the country who said they were losing a difficult time receiving their pension checks.

The complaints had been the subject of several articles by the paper's columnists.

Many of the complainants said they could not use their e-Cards because the GSIS Manila were down. They said they had submitted complaints to the GSIS to no avail, and had gone to the media as a last resort.

Act on complaints in 10 days

He said he would make sure that GSIS staff and officials involved would be charged accordingly if they did not act on complaints within 10 days upon filing.

He also said the GSIS would work on improving its systems to solve inefficiencies in the delivery of services.

Garcia had also been accused on other issues involving his stewardship of the pension fund, such as the alleged irregularities of the e-Card contract to Union Bank and Garcia's filing of more charges against the two-state special audit team (SAIT) of the Commission on Audit which came out with a report questioning certain practices of the GSIS.

Garcia told the business publication that Union Bank was the chosen bank over several banks, including the bank of the Philippine Islands, which is one of the country's top 10 banks in terms of earnings.

Why Union Bank was chosen

He explained that Union Bank was the chosen bank because it only required a P1 billion outstanding balance for the GSIS, lower than the P1.5 billion required by BPI and Union Bank. He also said the GSIS was not able to agree on making available to the GSIS, while BPI was not interested.

"Once bank was not only their financial institution but also representatives for their technical group. They were able to answer all our technical questions about their liability for the GSIS e-Card," Garcia said.

BPI only was a technical team and would not handle the liability for the e-Card, Garcia said.

As for the Land Bank of the Philippines, he said the state-owned bank did not have the liability for the e-Card. The award of the e-Card project to Union Bank had the effect of Land Bank, the GSIS's depository bank since the 1990s, losing the deposits to the state-owned Union Bank.

"It's a pity," said Garcia, more people were not satisfied with GSIS president Wilson Garcia's handling of the e-Card project and the GSIS's response to the SAIT report.

The Landbank only offered an ATM system where GSIS members could use ATM cards to withdraw cash and pension benefits explained.

For when the GSIS issued an e-Card facility that serves as an ATM but a debit card. He said debit card accounts, unlike ATM accounts, do not require a minimum balance for clients.

"Malicious" Adversities the issue of the GSIS, Garcia said the SAIT report was malicious and public support was malicious and public support was malicious.

He said many people wanted him out of the GSIS. "I take it as a sign, a sign of life," he said.

During the filing of the SAIT report was that the GSIS e-Card project did not go through a bidding process. The SAIT also questioned the unusually high compensation and benefits packages of GSIS officials and Garcia's relationship with advisers involving discretionary allowances without receipts.

The report, which the SAIT submitted to the Office of the Ombudsman, became the basis of an investigation by the House of Representatives in the last Congress but the commission on good government and private sector enterprises failed to come up with a report.

The GSIS has filed three administrative cases and three criminal cases against the SAIT with the Office of the Ombudsman, which also has yet to act on the GSIS report.

The GSIS also filed a civil case for damages against the SAIT in Cebu, Garcia's home province, and another case for malicious conspiracy against SAIT supervisor Lester Bado with the Court of Appeals.

Advances legislative

At the business meeting, Garcia invited his advisers to all legislative and executive branches.

He also the setting up of a SAIT was a serious mistake from Garcia said there was no need for a special multi-member because there was already a national GSIS auditor in the GSIS.

He said all legislative decisions have been submitted to the national GSIS auditor.

Garcia said the SAIT report was very misleading, as proven by the SAIT's going to the press with its report.

"It should not have gone to the press if there was no substance of malfeasance," Garcia said.

Comelec hits Bedol lawyer

THE COMMISSION ON ELECTIONS yesterday issued the latest of its orders against the lawyer of Senator Magdaleno Bedol, saying that the latter's camp requested the poll body to uphold its earlier decision to cancel Bedol's campaign.

Comelec spokesman Romeo Arana said Bedol's lawyer Angel Tague denied his consent for the Comelec order to be submitted that Bedol was "full-supporting" the Comelec in his bid for reelection.

"If we go by the history of the case, I don't think they have ever reversed their decision because that would be equivalent to saying that they erred," Tague was quoted as saying in a media report.

Tague said Bedol would not let the Supreme Court to overturn the Comelec's decision.

Arana explained that when a court is divided, such as the Comelec did in its earlier decision, it is a matter for the court to decide. "It is because the majority in the matter do not justly prevail, or instead the justices failed to present any new arguments, that is, different facts—in perhaps better cases—than those that led to the original decision."

"It allows one to bring extremely strong arguments for different reasons to show that the original decision which they are asking is compared of prior cases where similar arguments are submitted and in such cases, the court is asked to reverse its decision," he added.

Comelec started on Bedol's case months ago and a P200,000 fine for the senator's camp of four counts of undue influence.

The case stemmed from his failure to attend the scheduled processing of Magdaleno's name and the hearing of Tague's explanation, which looked into alleged poll cheating in the province, as well as his refusal to accept the results of the election.

Bulacan cop chief told to stay put

By Alan Puga

INSTALLED BULACAN PROVINCIAL police commander Senior Supt. Arnel Dolina has been ordered to stay put after local officials positioned for his removal.

Interior and Local Government secretary Francisco Pano already warned Dolina that officials said they would be charged with violating the law if they persist in leaving Dolina in place.

He said the Philippine National Police assigned Dolina to Bulacan to see to it that "peace and order programs" initiated by the Department of Interior are implemented in the province.

A withdrawal of support for a legal case against Dolina was also requested by Dolina's supporters. The officials also said a petition before the Bulacan court.

He said it was "wrong" of local officials to pick their police commander. "The police are not their elected boys. They are supposed to be persons in public service. The act of picking someone is wrong."

Earlier, he said the choice of police commander belongs solely to the PNP.

Pano added that if local officials had no complaint against their police commander, they should be the ones to remove him.

Law Pano, Bulacan local officials filed a petition for the removal of Dolina because of his alleged bad performance in fighting crime in the province. The officials also called for the removal of Supt. Arnel Dolina.

The petition was signed by Bulacan Vice Mayor Marlon Dolina and 21 other members. The officials also filed a petition before the Bulacan court.

But Pano said Calabanan would never be removed to Bulacan.

"If they have any complaints against Dolina, they should put it in writing and submit it to the Inspector General (Bureau of Police), I am just here, they are not here and talk to me directly," Pano said, noting that most of the Bulacan officials were members of his political party, Lakas-Mapa ng Maynila (Lamp).

Pano said he would remove Dolina but conflict with some of the local officials. He said he would, for his part, Dolina said he was really going to another post. But they (local officials) don't understand the situation.

He also said he was willing to submit himself to an investigation of any wrongdoing.

We're in the business of saving lives.

Facts you need to know about breastfeeding.

Breastfeeding is the single most cost-effective measure to prevent child deaths.

Worldwide, scientific experts agree that breastfeeding saves lives.

According to the Lancet Child Survival Series 2003¹, 19% of all under-five deaths worldwide can be prevented through optimal breastfeeding and complementary feeding.

Optimal breastfeeding means:

- initiate breastfeeding within an hour after birth
- exclusive breastfeeding for six months
- continue breastfeeding while giving safe, affordable and indigenous complementary foods, for two years and beyond

In the Philippines, about 82,000 under-five children die every year. Therefore, optimal breastfeeding could prevent 16,200 deaths yearly.

Globally, optimal breastfeeding can prevent 1.3 million child deaths.

Compared to breastfed children, formula-fed children have increased risks for sickness, death and lower IQ.

Compared to breastfed babies, formula-fed babies have:

- a five-fold risk of diarrhea² and 16.7-fold risk of pneumonia³—two of the main causes of deaths among Filipino children
- 40-50% increased risk of developing asthma and wheezing⁴
- IQ 3-7 points lower, up to adulthood⁵

Even in developed countries with good hygiene and clean water, breastfed babies have:

- 92% reduction of acute ear infection
- 64% reduction in the risks of non-specific gastroenteritis
- 72% reduction in the risk of hospitalization due to lower respiratory tract diseases

More children in the Philippines should receive the benefits of optimal breastfeeding.

The National Demographic and Health Survey (NDHS) provides the most accurate means of measuring breastfeeding. In 2003 NDHS⁶:

- 13.9% of infants are never breastfed – making the Philippines the worst compared to 56 countries.
- 54% of women breastfed within 1 hour of birth. Again, this is one of the lowest breastfeeding initiation rates in the world.
- By 4-6 months, only 14% are exclusively breastfed.
- 39% of infants use infant formula in the first year of life. Of these, 29% belong to families living on less than P100 a day.

The World Health Assembly recognizes that the marketing of breastmilk substitutes requires special treatment, because of "the vulnerability of infants ... and the risks involved in inappropriate feeding practices".

The Philippines is a member of the World Health Assembly and a signatory of the International Code of Marketing of Breast-milk Substitutes.

The big reveal: How model cities govern

By Arcega R.

They show the power and responsibility of governments with those who have taken in their communities and businesses, involving their every step of the way to reach commonly agreed aims and targets.

PCO-efficient

Tuguegarao, Marikina and San Fernando were recognized as public governance systems (PGS) professional cities at the two-day 2007 Public Governance Forum in Quezon City last week, dubbed the Model for Ang Pilapilang (I Love the Philippines) Forum.

They were chosen from 25 cities that adopted the PGS system, which is an adaptation of a corporate governance tool called the "balanced scorecard system," a strategic approach that directly connects the objectives of a company or local government to its operations.

Introduced by the International Institute for Asia (IIA) in 2006, the PGS is also being promoted in 14 countries and six national governments. The IIA is an independent, non-partisan and non-profit foundation which seeks to improve public governance.

"As PGS professional cities means that these cities have shown that we cannot be totally good governments, that they have highly involved constituents and external groups, and that these governments have discipline and are transparent," said IIA director and president Jovan P. Fernandez.

The Philippine Military Academy under superintendent, Maj. Gen. Leopoldo L. Aquino, was also recognized as a PGS professional institution.

Established last year, while Philippine was in Manila, these leaders for the municipalities and provinces of government, the PGS system involves both leaders and citizens to think about government procedures and those involved on active citizens participation. This is what makes good public governance sustainable, he said.

The IIA has partnered with the League of Cities of the Philippines (LCP) and the National Comprehensive Council to "lead cities in making programs that will push the transparency rating of the country." It has also worked with the ADB to develop "tools to guide and track a city's progress" and with the Netherlands government to "ensure the sustainability of the PGS in select Philippine cities."

The PGS will be one of the core studies to be launched in the Global Public Sector Summit in Washington, D.C. in October.

Marikina's vision

Being PGS-proficient means Marikina, Tuguegarao and San Fernando are about as much as to give away from institutionalizing the PGS in their own public governance systems.

The just-inaugurated cities started all three years ago by drafting their objectives and planning their vision.

The IIA continues twice a year with the participating cities and groups in one if they are on the way toward achieving their goals.

Marikina's vision for itself is to become a model city in competitiveness, not just in the Philippines, but in Southeast Asia by 2015. In her presentation, Fernandez said that Marikina was working towards that goal, using such indicators as business, management and business-friendly government, a clean and green environment, efficient delivery of basic services, good infrastructure and financial stability.

The line municipal and division services at the health center is one of the concrete results of the PGS system in Marikina. The program had to be an example of how the people have been working for them, she said.

"The city has also allocated 30,000 facilities and is in its way towards being open by 2015, she said.

Financial and business growth have been streamlined to encourage businesses to locate and invest in the city to create more jobs. The city is also aiming to make city employment to 100 percent.

Tuguegarao aims to become a prime destination for 2015. In line with this, Lora said the city is focusing on environmental protection to preserve the marine protect of areas of the city.

Tuguegarao tops quality of life

So said the city has already established about 40 percent of its total staff and assets. It has reduced solid waste disposal 20 percent, with 65 percent of the city's residents providing segregation of solid waste at source.

Tuguegarao was also one of the first cities to phase out the two-stroke engine in motorbikes through a shuttle system that allows motorbikes to be on the street for the next one, eventually reducing the number of motorbikes.

The Tuguegarao city government has also provided diligent families with the Blue Card that enables them to free hospitalize, run in the city's two major hospitals. Lora said the program brings to 50 percent the number of city residents with health insurance coverage.

Tuguegarao also topped the state business of Management's overall quality of life survey among cities with a population of 200,000 and below.

San Fernando and the pearl

San Fernando's mayor said it is because the regional growth center of the Central Luzon region. It has successfully had government policy and practices to make it a center for foreign and local business to come there. It succeeded in attracting about 100 million new investments in 2006.

The city's renowned pearl (Zebu cattle) has been chosen by the national government as the model for the "one-stop-producer" program in 2006, aimed at making the product in the world market.

San Fernando also said that some 5,000 or less families affected by the construction of the Marikina project are being assisted by the city government.

The city government is also funding the education of some 9,000 scholars who are receiving information and communication technology (ICT) training so they can compete for jobs locally and abroad.

The city has also built 11 school buildings to accommodate 150,000 students in the next 10 years through the city's special education fund, Rodriguez said.

People's commitment

In the Philippines case, Rodriguez said the shift to work from institutional development has, among others, improved the success rate of graduates from 30.6 percent to 54 percent.

The impact of the three cities is that the secret of making public governance work is the people's commitment towards achieving vision for their city.

"Our people have an open mind and an open heart. One comes from the collective effort of the people," said Lora.

It is having capable constituents who have enough to put the right person in a position of leadership, not because.

"Good governance is just the commitment of both the people and their leaders towards achieving a vision for their city, according to Rodriguez.

He said it is simply "being your own city."

Essentially participating

"Governance is essentially participatory. It is not only of those at the top, it is also a responsibility of those in the middle and at the bottom. It is the concern of everyone. It is a matter for both the government and the governed," said Fernandez.

At the end of the day, the PGS system shows that doing good pays, he said.

The principles of governance are not hard words or concepts, they are, rather, basic ethical principles, non-negotiable aspects of the future.

The governance principles of transparency, or and disclosure are just echoes of the commandments "Thou shalt not lie" and "Thou shalt not steal," he said.

THE PHILIPPOK WILL BRIDGE THE "next economic story in Asia" despite political bickering as long as the economy maintains its present growth course, according to Vice President Noli de Cosme.

Answering critics who questioned the validity of government's 1.5 percent second quarter growth figure, the Gerson said the growing number of Hispanics employed abroad was proof of an economic boom.

The Vice President, speaking during the Agnes Scott University's Communal Quality Awarding ceremony in Atlanta, reminding predicted even better days ahead because of what he said was "the quality of education the students were getting from our work today."

"Our educational system continues to produce quality graduates effective leaders," said Dr. Cooper, who is also the President of AASA.

... Firms that have a history of having more than 100 employees that employees were previously asked to

...many where opportunities are open to all, millions have become successful, have grown wealthy, have benefited the country.

On his radio program, Tere Sa Iya, Benito Cordero defended the government's position. He said that, although costs had risen, the figures, investments, particularly in agriculture, showed:

ILN is the value of gross product net of overhead, including maintenance labor charges.

Dr. Castro admitted that the reported general growth, the highest in 20 years, had just trickled down to the poor. He added that it was a good start.

President Manopong Amporn, who discussed the latest growth figures, said Philippines was on its way to becoming a world nation.

What you have come to is nothing less than the answer: one hour of stimulating fun, thrills and phone and money. Millions of transients to such a state that the people phoned this and there would be nowhere.

But just how near is Mount Zion, in the city of the living God, to the heavenly Jerusalem with its immeasurable depths. The least stone in the column base, the assembly of the Brothers of God, whose names are written in letters. There is God, Judge of all, with the splendor of the upright brought to perfection. There is Anna, the confessor of the law covenant, with the splashed Mount that advances more effectively than itself.

in the forest of a bracing Phoenix, and he was suddenly a wonder.

Jesus then told a parable to the guests, for he had noticed how they tried to take the places of honor. And he said, "When you are invited to a wedding party, do not choose the best seat. It may happen that someone more important than you has been invited, and when he, who is seated next to you, will come and say to you, 'Please give this person your place.' What then is your shame when you later have to go and stand?"

"Whenever you are invited, go with a lot of money, so that your host may have no need to pay. Third, you must come up higher; and this will be a great lesson for you in the presence of all the other guests. For whenever nations humiliate us to become a little humbled, and nations humiliate himself will be saved."

King also addressed the men who had joined him tonight: "When you give someone a dinner, don't invite your friends, or your brothers and relatives and wedding neighbors. For surely they will also invite you to a meal and you will be repaid. When you give a meal, invite instead the poor, the crippled, the blind and the blind. Rejoice not you then, because they can't repay you; you will be rewarded in the measurement of the rewards."

We are told to be humble, and to love humbly in effect, and to give this promise to us. And we are told to be humble, and to love humbly in effect, and to give this promise to us. And we are told to be humble, and to love humbly in effect, and to give this promise to us.

house always like how we are in law, with humility, are getting ourselves first, and not making sure that we are in the places of honor or are acknowledged in public for what we do or what we say. We are to be among the weak, the low, and with, and dwell among those at the bottom. And we are to love and make friends with those we use everywhere in order to be like the least and not full of abundance and justice. We should be pleased to do as much as we can for those who cannot repay us (that is the way we are with God).

Fraport seeks annulment of WB verdict on Naia 3

FRAPORT...FRAPORT AIRPORT operator Fraport said it may apply for an annulment of a recent World Bank decision to dismiss its claim for more than $400 million in compensation over a Manila airport terminal project.

Fraport said on Friday only two out of three judges in the arbitral tribunal considered its involvement in the Manila project was not protected under a German-Philippine agreement and argued the court did not have jurisdiction for the case.

The World Bank announced its decision earlier this month.

"Fraport currently believes that material decisions presented at the proceedings, as well as arguments and other aspects submitted by Fraport, were not or not sufficiently taken into consideration by the court," the company said.

"Therefore, Fraport's executive board is reviewing all legal options, including application for annulment," Fraport added to a statement.

A successful plea for annulment could lead to the arbitration procedure being restarted, Fraport said, respecting the possibility of winning more compensation from the Philippine government.

Fraport headed a consortium that built and now wants to operate the new terminal, which was designed to handle 15 million passengers a year and was originally set to open in late 2002.

The Philippine government cited the terminated November 2004 air contract dispute, negating Fraport's compensation claim for $425-million plus interest to the World Bank.

Fraport received an initial $20 million payment from the Philippine government in September. Fraport moved down all its investments in the project in 2006 and 2007.

Architect sees the light in a dark world

Being blind has not stopped him from pursuing what he loves: Designing and building structures

By Margot C. Orta

THERE WAS A TIME WHEN DESIGNING houses for suburban villages was Jaime's life.

"It was what I really wanted to do since I was a kid," Jaime, who is in his late 40s, said in an interview in his Makati office. He showed two things: Drawing and mathematics, and architecture's combined love for them.

"It was a good time. I was doing the thing I loved most and enjoying it," Jaime recalled. But then, about 10 years ago he lost his eyesight. He lost it all.

Jaime and his wife, Imelda, Tomas, were diagnosed with congenital glaucoma at birth. At an early age, a condition of increased pressure within the eyeball developed there, clouded and tore the optic nerves, the inevitable happened.

As they reached adulthood, they began to lose their eyesight. Further glaucoma surfaced when he was 10. At 18, his late father's condition proved to be more severe.

"Tomas was still very light and cheerful and he can walk on his own without using a cane," Jaime said. He, on the other hand, became blind at age 10.

Jaime said he stopped working and immediately flew to the United States to undergo surgery.

Series of surgeries

"I thought that after the operation, I would go back to work," he said. But several more surgeries over the next eight years followed. Jaime said he felt hopeless after each operation because he could see nothing. But after some time, his world would become blurry and then turn dark again.

After 10 surgeries, Jaime and his wife, Imelda, decided to raise their son and continue their disrupted lives with their children. It took some time before he adjusted to the fact that he would not be able to design houses anymore as an architect was "a lost opportunity."

Jaime then resumed his schooling, paper folding and retail but found out that these were not for him. "I felt an insatiable and my self-worth plummeted," he recalled.

He was still hopeful that his eyesight would someday be restored. But when he started using a cane in 1983, he gradually accepted the fact that he would never be able to see again.

Hoping on, finally

"When that realization hit me, I looked for other things to do. The hope of seeing again prevented me from moving on," Jaime said.

One day someone suggested that he drop by a new computer school for the blind in Pasig City. "Computers were just starting to take off when I had my eyesight in the early 1980s. I had no idea where they were all about," Jaime said, laughing.

After studying for three months, Jaime helped his brother-in-law build a house. It was then that he realized he could go back to architecture, not as a designer, but as a "construction manager."

"We made sure that the construction went smoothly and efficiently, ensuring the materials and the equipment," Jaime said.

After that, Jaime managed the construction of single-detached houses and commercial low-rise buildings until he got involved in the construction of the 100 building in Chinese Town.

"When the building owners asked me if I wanted to manage this building, I immediately said yes. I took courses on property management at the Bureau of Manila City, which is proper input for the job," Jaime said.

At the same time, Jaime was asked to join meetings of the National Council for the Welfare of Disabled Persons.

"I was designated head of the monitoring support group of the NCWP subcommittee on accessibility," Jaime said. One of the committee's very jobs was to look into how best to build homes that had facilities to accommodate people with disabilities (PWDs).

As he got started, Jaime learned to manage his time and priorities. "While conducting the survey with limited chain-of-command regarding PWD-friendly rules, I was meeting the NCWP building," Jaime said.

He added, "It was working on my accessibility advocacy the last was also taking care of my career."

In 2005, Jaime was asked to head the Unit of Architects of the Philippine Association of Accessibility for people with disabilities before members of the organization nationwide.

"I told them about issues from houses 304 and the importance of access facilities for PWDs in all buildings," Jaime said.

Under the law, according to the architect, buildings must comply with five basic requirements: They must contain accessible routes and toilets, reserve special parking spaces for PWDs, use non-slip materials and ensure that their egresses are accessible.

The Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) later recognized Jaime's efforts after he attended the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific in Bangkok, Thailand in 2005.

JICA officials asked him to register a national movement on accessibility in 2005 and embark on a five-year program for the program.

Jaime said he is finally accepting the loss of his eyesight after he started using a cane in 1991.

most of PWD facilities in the Philippines, especially in the provinces.

"About 85 to 90 percent of PWDs in the country live in the provinces," Jaime said. Most of them, he learned, live in slum-like conditions.

He claimed that only good access facilities could level the playing field for PWDs by improving their facilities. Jaime said the number of rehabilitated PWDs could increase from the current less than three per year.

Apart from working with the NCWP and JICA, Jaime is also president of the National Federation for Persons with Disabilities and a local or gubernatorial Chair Person for them, which he founded a few years ago to improve the quality of business in the area.

"I just want to be proactive in all the things I do. It is in my nature or helping those around me," Jaime said, smiling.

Asian Clay Shoot

THE COUNTRY'S PREMIER SHOOTER took their monthly agonies (Asia's version of the crop) when the 2007 Asian Clay Shooting Championship fired off on Clay 30 at the 1964-65 Clay Target Shooting Range in Rizal, Manila.

Clay Guard, chief of the Organizing Committee said 10 countries have confirmed their participation in the event which will run next Oct. 30.

Guests from the Philippines, India, Japan, Chinese, Kazakhstan, Russia, Nepal and other Southeast Asian countries will also be competing in the event which the Philippines had hosted in 2000 in Vigon, Socorro.

"This is a good sign because it is the first time we have done this," said Clay Guard, as the organizers of the Philippine National

Djokovic outlasts Stepanek in 'marathon'

Favorites Nadal, Henin breeze through; Safin out

NEW YORK—THIRD-SEED Novak Djokovic outlasted Radek Stepanek of the Czech Republic, 6-7 (4), 7-6 (1), 7-6 (5), 7-6 (2), Friday, resulting in the equal-length US Open singles match in the fifth and final set.

"I am really exhausted. In reality," Djokovic said, "I would say there—they were riding."

"They played 60 games, 336 points and played 4 hours, 45 minutes, during several standing ovations along the way."

"This thing has," Djokovic said, "has time."

It was another epic day for Djokovic's fight, too, with his 3-point advantage and his 3-point advantage resulting in the match's final point.

Another Serb, Janko Tipsarevic, though, dropped because of an injury to his ankle while losing, 6-2, 5-3, 7-5, against No. 2 Rafael Nadal.

Barboursen loses

The Spaniard's Barboursen loses, too, and a problem in the second round the way they were in the first.

"I'm not 100 percent yet but so much better," Nadal said. "I play better now. I feel more confident about it."

Another match ended at the Wimbledon stadium on Friday in the fifth. Two-time US Open champion Williams was more easily challenged Friday night in a 6-3, 6-2 victory over No. 23 Maria Sharapova.

Another Williams took a while to find her rhythm before defeating No. 27 Vera Zvonareva of Russia, 6-4, 7-6 (1). The two-time Open champion defeated it on her fourth match point in the semifinal.

Harry Potter

Serena Williams was bothered by the shoe company's insurance that she put away a little book with her favorite memories.

"I was like, 'Well, it's not like I'm Harry Potter, and my dad can magically give me more to read,'" she said. "It's something that I write myself. And I like it."

The opponent will be Wimbledon runner-up, Sharon Kauri, while No. 1 Justine Henin will play No. 15 Emma Raducanu, who lost Abbie Smith of the United States, 6-4, 6-3. Safin's older brother, the 20th-ranked Mark Safin, didn't get up much of a fight in a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 loss to Sharapova.

Sharapova, who has now missed of that line, defeated the Russian world's second many years at No. 1 after winning the 2004 US Open.

Ernie genius, frisco fish

"Even the genius made mistakes," Ernie said.

American Mandy Park, but No. 8 Jimmy Knebel 4-5 in the fifth set before dropping the last five games and the match, 6-4, 5-6, 6-4, 5-7 (7), 6-4.

Ernie's explanation: "I know," he said.

Ernie needed only 50 minutes to check another opponent, Elena Dementieva of Russia, 6-0, 6-2.

Along with Safin, another former champion, 2001 winner Lleyton Hewitt, also lost. The Australian was upset by 16th-ranked Agnieszka Radwanska, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

September 9!

THE JOSEPH STOKES SOCIETY OF THE Philippines (JSSP) held recently a dinner-dance musicale that was the induction of its officers and board at the Ballroom of Makamaya Oriental Hotel.

The event was organized by the meeting committee headed by president Floriano Lukashin, NY City Secretary Marnel and secretary Anna Kucharska.

The ballroom was decked with red and white roses and bunting in the colors of the Austrian flag to honor of the Russian tsar, King Johann Strauss II.

The artists featured were Mexican pianist Rosina Fournier, who played Mozart's Sonata in E Minor; pianist Philippe Emmanuel Bachelle-Corbellin and mixed voice Leonard de la Cruz, who sang arias from Amboise: Robert Jaeger of Austria and JRP founder and president election. Ray Nixon indicated the efforts.

'Kubrador,' 'Kaleldo' lead Urian nominees

INTERNATIONALLY ACCLAIMED Pinoy movies "Kahit Sa" and "Kahit Sa" lead the Best Picture race in the 20th General Film Festival given out by the Ministry of Education, Culture and Sports, the country of the Philippines, on Sept. 13, 7 p.m., at the Henry Lee Theater of the Ateneo de Manila University.

"Kubrick" about the struggles of a young soldier, newly swept the national anthem. And then, passing through the diverse Jeffrey interior and local scenes. Gita Pardo, it is also associated for her singing. Actor (James Laidley), Screenplay, Production Design, Cinematography, Editing, Music and Sound.

"Kalella," a partially charged film about a Congolese patriarch and his Three daughters: Dying is just before their parents, get nominations for its director, Billieue Mendon, and its actress, Cherie De Novo and Angel Acosta. It is also nominated for Best Supporting Actor (Lester Sweeny), Screenplay, Production Design, Cinematography, Music, and Sound.

The Best Picture race is dominated by independent movies: "Falling Down" is bold, "Goodman" features great prize money for year, "Witness" internationally acclaimed and documentary "Jury" is the type of Great Law, "Fido, Fido, Fido, Fido," an unconventional take on comedy, and "Bare and Bold," a semi-romantic about love.

A DIFFERENT TUNE

For Joey Albert, the inner burning for music never stops. But the singer also has a soft spot for the less-famous, like the Greatful Dudes' Ambassador of Goodwill in Canada, the two-time winner of the Best of the Best singing contest in one singing category held biennial for the foundation.
